

The Constitution of Kanatawi (New Canada)

Issued by: Marie Seshat Landry, Marie Landry's Spy Shop

Preamble

We, the sovereign Indigenous Nations of the territories formerly known as Canada, do hereby dissolve the colonial entities of Canada and its provinces, and establish Kanatawi (New Canada): a sovereign inter-nation confederacy dedicated to peace, trade, conflict resolution, environmental stewardship, and the preservation of all Indigenous cultures, languages, and laws.

Kanatawi is founded upon the principles of mutual respect, nation-to-nation cooperation, and the recognition of all Indigenous Nations as equal and sovereign partners in governance.

Article I — Dissolution of Canada and Provincial Governments

1. The colonial construct of Canada and all its provincial and territorial governments are hereby dissolved.
2. All legislative, executive, and judicial powers formerly held by these entities are returned to the rightful governance of Indigenous Nations.

Article II — Establishment of Kanatawi

1. Kanatawi shall be the official name of the inter-nation confederacy replacing Canada.
2. Kanatawi will serve as a diplomatic, economic, and cultural union of sovereign Indigenous Nations.
3. The central function of Kanatawi is to facilitate inter-nation peace, cooperative trade, environmental protection, and conflict resolution.

Article III — Structure of Governance

1. Kanatawi shall operate through a Grand Council of Nations, composed of equal representation from all member Indigenous Nations.
2. The Grand Council shall function as a consensus-driven body to mediate disputes, coordinate inter-nation initiatives, and represent Kanatawi in international affairs.
3. Each Indigenous Nation retains full sovereignty and self-governance within its ancestral territories.

Article IV — Land and Resources

1. All lands, waters, and resources formerly designated as Crown Land are now recognized as sovereign Indigenous territories.
2. Resource stewardship agreements shall be determined through nation-to-nation protocols, prioritizing sustainability and ecological balance.

Article V — Legal Systems and Jurisdiction

1. Indigenous legal systems shall be fully recognized as legitimate and binding across Kanatawi.
2. Inter-nation legal matters shall be addressed through Kanatawi's Grand Council Justice Commission, respecting each Nation's laws and traditions.
3. The colonial legal frameworks of Canada are nullified.

Article VI — Economic Cooperation and Trade

1. Kanatawi shall establish a Kanatawi Trade and Economic Council (KTEC) to oversee equitable trade agreements, resource sharing, and economic development initiatives.
2. All economic activities within Kanatawi shall be conducted under principles of Indigenous economic sovereignty and environmental sustainability.

Article VII — International Relations

1. Kanatawi shall seek immediate recognition as a sovereign inter-nation confederacy by the United Nations and the global community.
2. Each Indigenous Nation retains the right to conduct its own diplomatic relations, with Kanatawi serving as a collective representation when unified action is required.

Article VIII — Cultural Preservation and Education

1. Kanatawi shall protect and promote the languages, traditions, and cultural heritage of all member Nations.
2. An Indigenous Knowledge and Education Council shall be established to create educational systems rooted in Indigenous worldviews.

Article IX — Environmental Stewardship

1. Kanatawi recognizes the land, waters, and all living beings as sacred relations.
2. Environmental stewardship shall be a foundational duty of all Nations within Kanatawi, guided by traditional ecological knowledge.

Article X — Amendments and Ratification

1. Amendments to this Constitution shall require a consensus of the Grand Council of Nations.
2. This Constitution shall be ratified through formal nation-to-nation agreements and will come into immediate effect upon ratification.

Conclusion Kanatawi represents the end of colonial occupation and the rebirth of Indigenous sovereignty. This Constitution establishes a governance model based on respect, cooperation, and the shared responsibility to protect the land, cultures, and future generations.
