

Global Citizen Sovereignty & Intelligence Empowerment Charter

Issued under the Principles of Universal Human Dignity, Organic Rights, and Planetary Stewardship

Recognizing that all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights; Affirming that sovereignty is inherent in the individual, not conferred by the state; Acknowledging that the survival and prosperity of humanity requires a unified, informed, and responsible global community; Determined to establish a framework of Global Citizen Sovereignty that transcends borders, ensures planetary security, and upholds the ethical use of information and intelligence; We, the undersigned, declare the following principles as binding on all who claim global citizenship.

Article I – Sovereignty of the Individual

- Every person is a sovereign global citizen by birthright, regardless of nationality, ethnicity, gender, religion, or political status.
- Sovereignty is inalienable, non-transferable, and exists independently of state recognition or approval.
- No government, corporation, or entity may lawfully diminish the inherent sovereignty of a global citizen without due process compliant with Organic Law and the principles of natural justice.

Article II – Global Rights

- Freedom of Movement – the right to travel, reside, and work across the planet without arbitrary restriction.
- Access to Knowledge – universal access to accurate, uncensored, and verifiable information, including intelligence that impacts public welfare.
- Security & Privacy – protection against unlawful surveillance, violence, exploitation, and coercion.
- Environmental Integrity – the right to a healthy, sustainable planet and protection from ecological destruction.
- Self-Determination – the right to participate directly in global decision-making processes.

Article III – Global Responsibilities

- Peaceful Conduct – refraining from violence, exploitation, discrimination, and incitement to harm.
- Intelligence Integrity – using information ethically, verifying sources, and combating misinformation.

- Ecological Stewardship – preserving and restoring the planet ’ s life systems for current and future generations.
- Mutual Aid – providing assistance to other global citizens in distress, regardless of borders.
- Accountability – submitting to lawful, transparent investigation when suspected of violating global rights.

Article IV – Information Intelligence as a Sovereign Right

- Access to open-source intelligence (OSINT) is a universal right for informed decision-making and collective security.
- States and organizations are obliged to share non-classified, high-impact intelligence affecting public health, safety, peace, and environmental stability.
- Censorship of factual, verifiable intelligence that protects life, liberty, or ecological health constitutes a violation of global citizen sovereignty.

Article V – Governance & Enforcement

- A Global Citizens ’ Council shall be formed to represent sovereign individuals in the oversight of international policy and intelligence ethics.
- Disputes concerning violations of this Charter shall be heard by an International Organic Court of Sovereignty, applying both global law and Organic Law principles.
- All nations and organizations are urged to incorporate this Charter into their constitutions, corporate bylaws, and operational mandates.

Ratification & Adoption: This Charter shall be considered self-ratifying upon public declaration by any individual or community, becoming binding upon them and enforceable under the moral and legal principles herein.
