>>> Subject : Investing A Billion Dollars In Hemp R&D: A Step Towards Righting Prohibition's Wrongs >>>>

Dear Prime Minister Trudeau,

I hope this email finds you well. I am writing to you today to discuss an important matter that I believe requires urgent attention. As you are aware, the prohibition of hemp has had a significant impact on our society, and it is time for us to take action towards righting these wrongs.

I am requesting that your government invests a billion dollars in hemp research and development. This investment would be a significant step towards rectifying the damage that prohibition has caused to the hemp industry, and our economy as a whole.

Hemp has the potential to revolutionize several industries, from textiles to construction materials, and even the medical sector. However, due to its illegality for so long, we are yet to fully understand its capabilities and potential applications.

By investing in hemp research and development, we can unlock the full potential of this versatile plant, creating new jobs and opportunities for Canadians while also boosting our economy.

I urge you to consider this proposal seriously and take action towards investing in hemp R&D. This investment will not only benefit our economy but also assist in correcting the injustices of prohibition.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Marie Landry
