To Vitalité Health Network,

I am writing to express my urgent concern regarding the display of religious symbols, specifically crosses, on the roof of Dr. Georges-L.-Dumont University Hospital Centre in Moncton, New Brunswick. As a publicly funded institution, it is imperative that the hospital adheres to the principles of secularism, ensuring impartiality and inclusivity for all individuals, regardless of their personal beliefs.

According to the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, government-funded institutions are required to maintain a neutral stance on religious matters. Specifically, Section 2(a) guarantees freedom of conscience and religion, but public institutions are expected to avoid promoting any particular religion. You can review the Charter here: Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Moreover, the New Brunswick Human Rights Act mandates that public facilities provide equal treatment and respect for all individuals, regardless of their religion or belief. The Act requires that public spaces avoid displaying religious symbols that may alienate or discomfort individuals of different faiths. More details on the Act can be found here: New Brunswick Human Rights Act.

The presence of religious symbols such as crosses on the roof of the hospital is contrary to these principles and may create discomfort for patients and staff who do not share the same religious beliefs. It is essential that these symbols be removed immediately to comply with legal and regulatory requirements and to uphold the hospital's commitment to neutrality and inclusivity.

I respectfully request that the hospital administration take immediate action to remove the crosses from the roof and review its policies regarding the display of religious symbols to ensure full compliance with secular guidelines.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

Marie Seshat Landry
