PREAMBLE Recognizing that the fabric of existence is governed by immutable principles that predate and transcend human authority, this doctrine affirms the supremacy of Universal Law—the inherent order of nature and consciousness—as the highest form of law. All human systems—political, legal, economic, and technological—derive legitimacy only insofar as they align with these organic principles. Laws may be written, but truth is discovered.

ARTICLE I – UNIVERSAL LAW Universal Law is the self-evident, self-regulating order of existence—the equilibrium that sustains life, consciousness, and matter. It includes the laws of physics, biology, ecology, and moral constants that uphold respect, balance, and reciprocity.

ARTICLE II – NATURAL LAW Natural Law is humanity ’ s conscious interpretation of Universal Law. It expresses moral recognition that all beings possess inherent value and the right to exist and evolve in balance with the whole.

ARTICLE III – POSITIVE LAW Positive Law—domestic, international, or corporate—derives legitimacy only when reflecting the principles of Universal and Natural Law. When it contradicts them, it forfeits moral legitimacy and becomes void in the higher sense.

ARTICLE IV – THE DOCTRINE OF ORGANIC SUPREMACY 1. The sovereignty of life supersedes the sovereignty of nations. 2. No statute, treaty, or decree may override the inherent rights of living systems. 3. Lawfulness is measured by organic integrity. 4. All human authority is delegated authority, contingent upon harmony with Universal Law.

ARTICLE V – THE PRINCIPLE OF DISCOVERY, NOT CREATION Laws of life are discovered, not invented. Human governance must act as an instrument of discovery, aligning innovation and policy with the intelligence embedded in nature.

ARTICLE VI – THE ORGANIC MANDATE FOR CIVILIZATION This hierarchy calls for a post-predatory civilization founded in reciprocity, transparency, and sustainability.

CLOSING DECLARATION Therefore, we declare: That Universal Law stands above all human law; That Organic Law is the living testament of that truth; And that humanity ’ s highest duty is to uphold, not rewrite, the laws of life.
