

Here's a first draft:

The Universal Declaration of LGBTQ Rights

Preamble

Recognizing the inherent dignity and equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family as the foundation of freedom, justice, and peace in the world, and acknowledging the unique challenges and discrimination faced by lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and intersex (LGBTQI) individuals globally,

Article 1: Right to Equality

Every individual, regardless of their sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression, shall be treated equally under the law and shall have equal protection of the law without any discrimination.

Article 2: Right to Non-Discrimination

No person shall be discriminated against on the basis of their sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression in any sphere of life, including but not limited to, employment, education, healthcare, housing, and public services.

Article 3: Right to Dignity and Personal Autonomy

Every individual has the right to live with dignity and make decisions regarding their body and personal relationships without interference, judgment, or violence.

Article 4: Freedom of Expression and Association

Every person has the right to freely express their sexual orientation and gender identity and to associate with others. The right to peaceful assembly and association shall be protected, including for purposes of advocacy and community formation.

Article 5: Right to Personal Safety and Protection

All individuals shall be protected from violence, harassment, and hate crimes based on their sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression.

Article 6: Right to Privacy

The privacy of individuals, including their sexual orientation and gender identity, shall be respected and protected.

Article 7: Access to Justice

Every person shall have equal access to justice and effective remedies for violations of their rights related to sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression.

Article 8: Right to Health

Individuals shall have access to healthcare services that are respectful, non-discriminatory, and sensitive to the specific health needs related to their sexual orientation, gender identity, and expression.

Article 9: Right to Family Life

Every individual shall have the right to form a family, including through marriage or partnership, adoption, and access to reproductive technologies, without discrimination.

Article 10: Right to Education

All individuals shall have the right to an inclusive education free from discrimination and bullying based on sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression.

Article 11: Right to Work

Every individual has the right to work and to just and favorable conditions of work, without discrimination based on their sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression.

Article 12: Right to Participate in Public and Cultural Life

Individuals have the right to participate fully and effectively in public, political, and cultural life, regardless of their sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression.

Article 13: Duty to Promote Acceptance and Non-Discrimination

States and societies have a duty to promote acceptance and inclusion of diverse sexual orientations, gender identities, and expressions, and to take steps to combat prejudice, stereotypes, and discrimination.

Article 14: Implementation and Monitoring

Mechanisms shall be established for the implementation and monitoring of these rights, and for holding states and individuals accountable for violations.

This declaration is a starting point and should be further developed and refined through consultation with LGBTQ communities, legal experts, and human rights advocates to ensure it comprehensively addresses the needs and rights of LGBTQ individuals.
