

Universal Declaration of Personal Autonomy and Respect

Preamble

Recognizing the inherent dignity and the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family as the foundation of freedom, justice, and peace in the world;

Acknowledging that every individual deserves to live a life free from unwarranted interference, harassment, or disrespect;

Emphasizing the importance of personal autonomy, the right to privacy, and the freedom to pursue one's life within the bounds of respect for others;

Hereby proclaim the following rights essential for the fulfillment of individual dignity and autonomy:

1. Right to Personal Autonomy: Every individual has the right to make choices regarding their own life, body, and privacy without undue interference, as long as these choices do not infringe upon the rights of others.
2. Right to Privacy: Individuals are entitled to a private life, free from intrusion or surveillance that is not warranted by a legitimate need for protection or the well-being of society.
3. Right to Dignity and Respect: Every person should be treated with respect and dignity, free from bullying, harassment, or any form of mental, physical, or emotional abuse.
4. Right to Freedom of Expression: Individuals have the right to express themselves freely, provided that such expression does not harm others or incite violence or hatred.
5. Right to Peaceful Enjoyment of Property: Every person has the right to enjoy their property and personal space without undue disturbance or violation.
6. Right to Non-Discrimination: No one shall be discriminated against on any grounds such as race, gender, sexual orientation, religion, or social status in the pursuit of their rights and freedoms.
7. Right to Legal Recourse: Individuals have the right to seek legal recourse and protection against violations of their autonomy and respect.

This declaration calls upon all members of society to uphold these rights and work together towards a world where every individual can live freely and with respect, contributing to the overall peace and harmony of our global community.