

Universal Declaration of Independent Cannabis Dealers

Marie Seshat Landry
Marie Landry's Spy Shop

April 2, 2025

Preamble

Recognizing the historical, cultural, and medicinal significance of cannabis, and acknowledging the challenges faced by independent dealers due to inconsistent legal frameworks, we declare the following principles to ensure fair, responsible, and ethical practices in the independent cannabis trade.

Article 1: Right to Trade Fairly and Safely

Independent cannabis dealers have the right to conduct their trade without undue harassment, discrimination, or criminalization, provided they operate with integrity and adhere to ethical business practices.

Article 2: Commitment to Quality and Safety

Dealers shall ensure that all cannabis products are safe, unadulterated, and accurately represented in potency and effects. Transparency in sourcing, growing, and processing methods is essential.

Article 3: Responsible Distribution

The sale of cannabis shall be conducted responsibly, prioritizing informed consent and harm reduction. Dealers shall not sell to minors or individuals who are at risk of harm from cannabis use.

Article 4: Ethical and Community-Centered Practices

Independent dealers shall foster positive relationships within their communities by promoting responsible use, supporting local economies, and contributing to social well-being.

Article 5: Protection from Exploitation and Criminalization

Governments and regulatory bodies shall recognize the rights of small-scale and independent cannabis dealers, ensuring they are not unfairly targeted or excluded from emerging legal markets.

Article 6: Sustainability and Environmental Responsibility

Dealers shall strive for environmentally sustainable practices, including responsible sourcing, waste reduction, and support for organic and regenerative cannabis cultivation.

Article 7: Mutual Support and Collective Advocacy

Independent cannabis dealers shall work together to advocate for fair policies, share knowledge, and protect their rights against monopolization and unjust legal frameworks.

Article 8: Recognition of Cannabis as a Cultural and Medicinal Plant

The historical and medicinal value of cannabis shall be respected, and its use should not be stigmatized or criminalized when used responsibly and in accordance with informed personal choice.

Conclusion

This Declaration calls upon individuals, communities, and policymakers to recognize the role of independent cannabis dealers as responsible contributors to society. We affirm our commitment to ethical trade, safety, and the protection of personal and economic freedoms.