Preamble

Recognizing that music is a fundamental means of self-expression, cultural identity, and social unity, and that volume is an essential element of many musical experiences,

Acknowledging that loud music has historically played a role in celebrations, protest movements, artistic innovation, and community bonding,

Affirming that individuals have the right to enjoy, create, and share loud music within reasonable limits that respect the rights and well-being of others,

Determined to establish a balanced framework that protects both the freedom to play loud music and the interests of those who may be affected by it,

We hereby proclaim this Universal Declaration of Loud Music.

Article 1. Right to Loud Music

Everyone has the right to play, listen to, and perform loud music in both private and public spaces, subject to reasonable and fair regulations.

Loud music in public spaces must be balanced with the rights of others to peace and quiet. Communities and governing bodies should create fair policies that allow for loud music at designated times and locations.

Article 4. Hearing Protection and Awareness

Individuals and institutions that promote loud music should encourage awareness of hearing health and provide access to protective measures, such as earplugs and safe listening guidelines.

Article 5. Non-Discrimination in Musical Expression

No person shall be discriminated against for their preference for loud music. Venues, festivals, and performance spaces should be inclusive of all musical styles and sound levels.

Article 6. Implementation and Fair Regulation

Laws and policies regarding loud music should be made in consultation with musicians, listeners, and community representatives to ensure fairness and accessibility for all.

Article 7. Final Provisions

This declaration serves as a guiding framework for all individuals, communities, and governing bodies in fostering a world where loud music can be enjoyed responsibly and freely.
